

Learning involves real-world problems that mimic the work of professionals in the discipline. Findings are presented to audiences beyond the classroom.

What problems are your students interested in?

CHOICE

Students are empowered through choice to direct their own learning in relevant project work.

How can you allow your students more agency?

Learners take on the role of the inquirer and think critically and creatively. Open-ended inquiry, thinking skills, and metacognition are addressed.

How can you facilitate student inquiry?

Students engage in discourse and social learning in a community of learners.

How can you promote this?
