

A festive night scene for Diwali. Three young women are gathered around a table, smiling and looking at small lit candles. The table is covered with many more lit candles in glass holders. To the right, there are several wrapped gifts in colorful paper with ribbons. The background is dark, decorated with hanging orange marigold garlands, colorful lanterns (pink, orange, yellow), and strings of lights. The overall atmosphere is warm and celebratory.

Happy Diwali!

After our Teaching Session on the 4th of November 2021, our class honored Diwali day by giving our families nice messages written on a card and made them something nice to eat. We hung out with our families and talked about all our blessings and what we wished for our future. “Today class let us enjoy the LIGHT BY SPREADING THE LIGHT AT HOME WITH YOUR FAMILY.”

Celebrating Diwali means decking your house in lights and colors, giving Diwali cards to your family and friends, spending time with your loved ones, and enjoying delicious food together—all meant to welcome in the Hindu New Year and appreciate light and joy.
