

How The World Came To Be.

---

---

Written by Kate Harris

The background of the image is a dark, textured surface with a marbled pattern. It features intricate, swirling veins of light gray and white against a deep black or dark charcoal base, creating a complex, organic texture.

This story is about how New Zealand and Australia are brothers and wanted to explore the world but it did not go as planned.

A long time ago all the countries were connected.

All the countries kept getting into big fights and all the force made them split apart.

---

Most of the countries were happy that the fights were over but some of them liked to watch them happen.

New Zealand and Australia were able to stay together during the fights. After the countries separated New Zealand and Australia decided that they wanted to go on a big adventure around the world.

They had planed that they were going to travel around the world and while they were on their journey they wanted to look at a few different options where they could live forever.

They had planned to decide where they wanted to live and then go back a while after and stay there forever but

IT DIDN'T GO AS PLANNED.

When they set off on their adventure they were excited

BUT LITTLE DID THEY KNOW WHAT WAS GOING TO HAPPEN
NEXT.....

Every thing seemed to be going fine
until they hit a rock a big rock.

Alll of the impact split New Zealand and Australia into two countries .

While the countries were drifting away from each other New Zealand hit another rock all of the impact split it in to two the north island and the south island.

At first they were sad but over time they realised that it was probably better for them to be apart but they still stayed very close brothers and that is how the world came to be.

