

HILLMORTON

WELCOME FROM THE PRINCIPAL

Dear Prospective Students, Parents/Caregivers and Whanau.

Choosing a secondary school is a serious and important task. Schools are each unique.

Matching a school's values, culture, goals and approach to your individual needs, is not straightforward. It requires considered thought.

I am sure that you realize that the values, beliefs and motivation of the principal directly influence each unique school culture. It is therefore important for you to have an understanding of who I am, and in what I believe.

I was raised in Christchurch in a family which values humour, individuality, generosity, creativity and achievement. Our parents encouraged their children to be 'free souls'. They tried not to manipulate, but to keep a watchful eye on our development. They wanted us to be 'good people' and to grow up without bias towards others; without bias of race or creed, of abilities or disabilities, of wealth or poverty. As a family we remain very close.

At Hillmorton we are working hard to create a real sense of community where diversity is valued. This teaches our young people to be tolerant of, to enjoy and even celebrate, our differences. It is these differences that make Hillmorton High School such a vibrant and exciting school, and a wonderful place at which to work and study.

As Principal, I value the following: optimism, honesty, integrity and loyalty, tolerance for, and the celebration of difference, the pursuit of excellence and the firm belief that schools and, indeed, life should be full of fun, vitality and challenge.

I also believe in setting high standards for myself, our students, and for those with whom I work. I believe in consultation, but not to the extent that nothing gets done. Harnessing the abilities, strengths and knowledge of our staff, students, parents and our community will lead to success for our students.

My basic philosophy of education is based on the importance of goal-setting, learning from one's mistakes and achievements, celebrating success and differences, and a willingness for all involved in education to question and critically review, in order to improve the quality of what we do. I believe that it is of the utmost importance to give our young people the opportunity to experience success and to learn about responsibility. At Hillmorton High School we develop in our students, a desire to learn, strong citizenship skills and a will to achieve to the best of their abilities.

Our talented staff at Hillmorton High School are passionate about education. Hillmorton High School provides an inclusive environment based on respect and caring.

Hillmorton is a school where the staff, together with the students, their families, the Board of Trustees, and the wider community, are indeed "creating better futures."

Ann Brokenshire, Principal.

CELEBRATING DIVERSITY AND COMMUNITY

Hillmorton High School is a diverse school in many ways; culturally, ethnically, socially and academically, and yet it is very much a community where our differences are celebrated.

We celebrate our background based on the Treaty of Waitangi with a bi-cultural focus preparing our students for participating fully in life in Aotearoa New Zealand with a sound understanding of our history.

As New Zealand itself is becoming increasingly multi-cultural, this is reflected in the cultural diversity of our school population.

All students' ethnic backgrounds are celebrated and the school helps our young people to develop positive identity. Symbols of these diverse backgrounds can be seen around the school.

Hillmorton High School has for a number of years, enjoyed and benefited from the presence of a number of international students who make Hillmorton their school of choice for study.

The Upland specialist classes are for students with severe multiple disabilities.

These students are supported in their programmes of learning both in mainstream classes and in the local community and bring with them a special diversity to our school. We have high expectations for these students, as with all Hillmorton students.

We celebrate our background based on the Treaty of Waitangi with a bi-cultural focus.

We have satellite provision for students enrolled at Van Asch Deaf Education Centre. Students attend some classes with Hillmorton students, receive specialist support and have the opportunity to be involved in the wider life of the School.

We offer a broad range of subjects and activities at Hillmorton. Students are able to be involved in such activities as ICAS and Cantamaths.

We celebrate culture and the arts where our students achieve excellent results. Dance (Toi Kanikani), Drama (Toi Whakaari), Music (Toi Puoro) and the Visual Arts are offered as subjects, and student work is used as national exemplars.

HILLMORTON'S HERITAGE

THE ENVIRONMENT

The school site was once a very large swamp extending from Lincoln Road to the Cashmere Hills.

This swamp was teeming with life: eels, native trout, freshwater crayfish and was a rich food source for Maori. The raupo which grew in the swamps also provided material for a unique boat/raft called the makihi.

The name of the Upper Heathcote was Waimakihi and the settlement near Sunnyside Hospital was called Omakihi.

THE NAME HILLMORTON

Throughout the years there has been controversy over the spelling Hillmorton or Hillmorten.

R.M. Morten owned land in the area and some people believe the area was named after him. However, the Lands and Survey Department ruled that Hillmorton was correct as it was the name of Rev Joseph Twigger's farm of 1876 which was named after Hillmorton near Rugby, England.

THE NAME HOROMAKA

Horomaka was a famous Waitaha ancestress who was married to an equally famous man. During a battle alongside the Upper Heathcote River she was killed and her body was left there.

Rikki Ellison, the Rangatira from Taumutu (he is represented on our waharoa) designated the area of land between Hillmorton and Hornby to be called Horomaka.

THE SCHOOL CREST

The school crest, a Bengal tiger, was taken from the family crest of Sir John Cracroft Wilson – owner of the nearby Cashmere estate.

The tiger was chosen because it symbolizes beauty, strength and fiery determination.

The Latin motto "Virtus Sibi Praemium" translates as 'a good character brings its own rewards.'

It also appears on the Cracroft Wilson Crest.

THE KORU AND MAUNGA

This design represents – New Life/New Beginnings.

The Koru symbolizes a new beginning of learning things Maori at Hillmorton, a recognition of how Maori identify with their culture.

The black triangle is a mountain. The blue is the river flowing from life, the foetus, the beginning of life that appears in unfurling of the Koru.
