

Community engagement on proposed new primary education provision in the Halswell area

The Ministry of Education is currently working on plans for future primary education provision in the Halswell area and is seeking your input. This is an exciting opportunity for parents and the whole community to contribute innovative ideas and have input into future education provision.

The first phase of the engagement will involve face-to-face public workshops, facilitated by Dr Gabrielle Wall, to gather and explore ideas about future education provision. These are scheduled as follows:

- Tuesday August 16th, 7.30 – 8.30pm, Halswell School
- Tuesday August 23rd, 7 – 8pm, Hillmorton School
- Wednesday August 24th, 6 – 7pm, Rowley Avenue School
- Tuesday September 6th, 7 – 8pm, Oaklands School

These sessions are all open to the public and parents or interested community members can attend any session. Similar content will be covered in all sessions, so feel free to attend whichever best suits your schedule.

The ideas and themes generated through this first phase will then be used to construct an online survey that will make it possible to identify which options and ideas have a wider base of support. The online survey will be open from September 12th – 30th.
