

Chaperon Rouge

Strolling through the forest, the young girl could hear the birds tweeting and the trees swaying. Lonely, nowhere to go Chaperon Rouge found an abandoned bridge. The bridge was damaged, overgrown and rotten. Slowly walking across the bridge, it led her to a big patch of swaying bright green grass. Walking on, it led her to a big abandoned village. The village was broken like an abandoned city. She looked around the abandoned village, there was no one to be seen. All of a sudden... It turned dark, and she lit a fire in a cave. She was dozing off then she fell asleep.

During the night, everything turned from a nice blue sky to a bloody red shadow. The sky, grass and trees all turned into a dark shadow. The trees were turning into some kind of beast that was long, spiky and had bright orange eyes. Moving through the town, everything was starting to crumble. Smashed, buildings falling everywhere on the ground everything shaking like an earthquake. The creature's eyes got bigger and brighter. Suddenly, She woke up panting and out of breath. Wondering what just happened, was this all a dream or was it real she looked up and nothing had changed.

Quietly, standing up she started to pack up her things, she then heard her a noise turning around there were shadows coming towards her. The shadows is a pack of wolves running for a feast. Sprinting as fast as she could the creatures were catching up to her. Next she ran through the city trying to get rid of the beast. Where did these animals come from? Thought the girl as she ran down a cliff. Running over rocks more creatures are chasing her. Puffed, she doesn't know if she can keep running any longer. Sprinting over a broken rotten log the only way over to the other side was to jump. As she was running over the rocks she said to herself "Is this ever gonna stop?". Tripping over, everything then went black.

She woke up lying on a pile of hard silver rocks. Standing up she saw another old city and she decided to go check it out. The city was still and no movement, was there anyone inside she thought. Slowly walking into the building scared and wondering what is going to happen. She walked until the building started to swallow her. Snap.

By Molly